MADRID BOMBED AS REBELS OPEN DRIVE ON CAPITAL

3 Strong Columns Ready To March on Metropolis Which Moves To Evacuate All Non-Combatants and Prepares for Siege.

ATTACK WITH GAS FEARED IN CITY

Moscow Establishes Direct Radio Communication With Loyalists; Recruiting Is Speeded Up.

LISBON, Monday, Oct. 12.—(UP)—Three strong Rebel columns were ready for a final drive on Madrid today following an attack on the Spanish capital by 20 huge bombing planes.

Rebel General Francisco Franco, following his usual tactics, opened the drive Sunday by dealing death from the air.

Today his well-trained troops, led by fierce African Moors and foreign legionnaires, were ready to go into action with machine guns and bayonets.

The Rebels boasted a month ago that they would reach Madrid today—the great Spanish national holiday commemorating the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus.

Madrid made hasty preparations to evacuate non-combatants from the capital as Rebel forces pushed closer from all sides to within 40 miles of the city.

Prepare for Siege. Further preparations for withstanding a siege were started. Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez Del Vayo told a meeting of 5,000 members of the Socialist youth organization that "Madrid must win this war of independence and stem the Fascist advance."

The capital's defense junta counted on two factors in the defense of the city—the weather and the international situation. Snow in the mountains north of Madrid and fog and rain west and south of the capital combined to assist the defenders. International developments in the last few days were looked upon as hopeful signs for the Loyalist government.

The government finally wins the right to acquire armaments in a world market, its situation will be considerably improved.

Fear Gas Attack. The capital prepared to withstand a gas attack and instructions for remedies of fear and mustard gas were posted in public places.

A United Press correspondent in Madrid telephoned his London office

Man Swims 3 Miles To Get Aid for Ship

KEYPORT, N. J., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Harold Lentz, 35, of Elizabeth, swam three miles through a heavy sea to-night to get aid for three companions drifting out to sea on his cabin cruiser.

The disabled craft was three miles out in Raritan bay, the anchor was dragging and the boat was steadily drifting to sea when the rescue craft reached it.

Grid Victor Visits Boy Waging Futile Fight for Life

His football hero, Georgia Tech's Marion "Dutch" Konemann, brought smiles to the face of little Jimmy Moore last night. Jimmy is shown above as he gazed in awe at his visitor. "Dutch" read of Jimmy's interest in the Tech team and insisted on visiting the plucky little boy who is waging a futile fight against the fatal acute lymphatic leukemia, at Grady hospital. ## Football Star Brings Happy Smiles To Boy Facing Inevitable Death

'Dutch' Konemann, Visiting Jimmy Moore, 12, Center on Midget 'Y' Team, Promises Young Patient a Seat on Bench at Clemson Game.

By LEE ROGERS. Little Jimmy Moore's eyes sparkled once more yesterday. His football hero, "Dutch" Konemann, came to see him.

Jimmy, 12-year-old son of Mrs. Agnes Moore, is suffering from the inevitably fatal acute lymphatic leukemia, and though Grady doctors said he held his own yesterday, has been steadily growing weaker during the 10 days he has been sick. His stepfather, Mack Moore, is ill at home.

When "Dutch" entered the little hospital room, Jimmy's eyes grew wide, actually sparkled, and he held out a thin arm to shake hands with his "hero."

"How are you feeling, Jimmy?" Dutch asked.

"Pretty good. Guess you must be pretty tired after that game yesterday."

"No, I'm rested, Jimmy. What position do you play?"

"Me, I'm a center on the Midget 'Y' team. Say, you know I was watching you play in the P. C. game when I first got sick. Gee, that was a swell game. I saw it selling ice cream in the stands."

Konemann, touched by the lad's enthusiasm, promised to let him sit on the bench at Clemson game.

MOSCOW RENEWS ARABS TERMINATE ATTACK ON ITALY PALESTINE STRIKE

Russia Accuses Fascists of Falsehood and Slander; Crisis Intensified.

MOSCOW, Oct. 11.—(UP)—Soviet Russia, far from retreating before the Fascist diplomatic onslaught in London, intensified the European crisis over the Spanish civil war today with a scathing attack on Italy, Germany and Portugal.

The newspaper Pravda, official organ of the Communist central committee, in a fiery editorial, compared the diplomatic representatives of these neutral powers on the international neutrality committee to "criminals caught red-handed" and accused them of falsehood and slander.

Before the committee in London, Russia charged that Italy, Germany and Portugal had given and still were giving military aid to the Spanish Rebels. Italy, joined by Portugal and Germany, charged that Russia had aided Spanish Loyalists. Both sides threatened to consider the neutrality pact abrogated and themselves "free to return to work quietly and without disorder."

Additional police and army detachments were posted at various points where terrorism has occurred previously—such as Nabul, Tulkarem, and Jenin—to guard against possible new disorders.

The Arab committee, expressing hope that all violence has ended, awaited the coming of a British royal commission to look into Arab grievances. The Arabs have opposed unrestricted Jewish immigration to the Holy Land and sale of land to Jews.

The Jewish Telegraphic Agency estimated September 29 that 428 British Jews and Arabs had been killed in the Palestine disorders and that property damage totaled $14,000,000.

Soviet Troops Clash With Manchoukuan

SEUL, Korea, Oct. 12 (Monday) (AP)—Russian and Manchoukuan troops clashed today on the Soviet-Manchoukuan border after a month of comparative quiet along the frontier.

Four Manchoukuan soldiers were known to have been killed and five others were wounded in the encounter, which occurred near Chientao. In addition, a number of Manchoukuan soldiers were missing.

The number of Soviet casualties was not mentioned in reports reaching here.

Manchoukuan reinforcements were rushed to the scene.

FRENCH SOLDIERS PREVENT RIOTING

Rightists Blocked From Attacking Red Meetings Over Alsace-Lorraine.

STASBOURG, France, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The threat of steel-helmeted mobile guards today kept a serious Communist roller from turning into bloody battles with Rightist forces in Alsace-Lorraine.

The Socialist government's heavy police precautions caused the two-day demonstrations to end in comparative quiet, after mobile guards foiled an attempt by Rightists to march on a Communist meeting at Strasburg.

Meets at Colmar, Mulhouse, Guebwiller, Niederbronn, Creutzwald and Haguenau were held quietly under watchful eyes of police.

Meanwhile at Valenciennes Colonel De La Rocque addressed a gathering of 2,000 members of his party in the municipal theater and announced the time had come for the French "Social party" to go into action and "spill blood if necessary."

After last night's rioting at Metz in which 10 persons were injured when police battled demonstration Rightists.

Blum Urges Unity. Faced by warnings of a Communist bid from the popular front, Premier Blum spoke today at Lens and reaffirmed his fidelity to the coalition government. He urged continued party loyalty as an essential factor in assuring a majority in parliament.

The premier spoke in Lens stadium before 50,000 Socialists.

"Ours is not a Socialist government," Premier Blum asserted. "But a government of all parties of the people's front. A majority in the people's front is possible only through the loyalty of all of us."

Three thousand Rightists marched on the Communist meeting at Strasburg.

They gathered strength as they swept along with many sidewalk watchers joining their ranks and singing the Marseillaise.

Mobsters rushed to the fair grounds apparently deciding not to risk a fight in the city's streets but to make a "last stand" to protect the Communist before their meeting hall at the fair grounds.

The anti-Communists paraded straight into a trap set for them in Place Broglie, a small square with a fountain.

All-Time Attendance Record Set As Sunday Throng Sees Fair Close

With a new all-time Sunday attendance record established, the twenty-second annual Southeastern Fair and Educational Exposition closed its most successful year at midnight last night. Crowning of Gus Schrader, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, as the new world's dirt track race champion, a Collins took an early lead, but sidestepped the inside fence on the sixth lap and lost just enough time for Schrader to pass him and remain in front.

Dave Champeau, of Hollywood, Cal., gave the packed grandstand a thrill when his car crashed into the fence on the north curve, turned over three times and burst into flames. Champeau escaped without a scratch.

A broken wheel, which mounted the hill, bounded over the high fence and landed on South Pryor road, where a passing motorist picked up the wheel and sped away.

It was the second accident of the three days of national circuit racing in which cars were demolished, and neither driver received a scratch. Fritz Tegtmeyer, Roselle, Ill., turned over three times last Sunday.

LONDON'S POLICE RESCUE LEFTISTS IN VICTORY MARCH

Fascists Attack Parade of 10,000 in Effort To Seize Red Banners Beaten Off in Furious Fight.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—(UP)—Police with drawn batons charged crowds today as Fascists and Leftists battled furiously for possession of Laborite and Communist banners in London's East End when 10,000 Communists and anti-Fascists staged a "victory march."

The Communists were celebrating last Sunday's "victory" over Fascists in the East End. Several marchers fell bleeding from razor wounds.

As participants in the Leftist procession approached Victoria park they were greeted with Fascist shouts of "We want Moscow!" Sir Oswald Mosley is leader of the Fascist black-shirt. The sidewalk crowds gave the Fascist salute.

"Keep your heads and march straight," the marchers' leaders shouted. But at this moment a group of 50 youths yelling, "Up with Fascism," charged into the procession and pulled down a Communist banner.

The crowd surged forward, knocking down policemen. Fierce fighting was in progress for the banner. Police reinforcements drew clubs and charged, causing a stampede. Several men were arrested.

Mounted police were called up and the marchers continued into the park through a hail of missiles, flour and rubbish thrown by the Fascists. The Fascists kept shouting, "We want Moscow, we want Moscow!"

The Communists raised their clenched fists in the party salute and yelled back, "They shall not pass, they shall not pass."

The Communists and Laborites held their meeting in the park, protected by police who skinned the park with clubs on the outskirts of the park.

After the meeting, the London district committee of the Communist party issued a manifesto praising the police for "order, dignity and discipline."

MAN KILLS SISTER, PARENTS, HIMSELF

Youth Sets Fire to Barn and Burns 23 Horses and Cows to Death.

CRYSTAL FALLS, Mich., Oct. 11.—(AP)—George H. J. Larson reported that George Oja, 25, shot and killed his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Oja, and sister, Lulu, 23, at their farm home today and then committed suicide.

Larson said that George also set fire to the barn on the farm, near Ansonia, Mich., burning to death 23 cows and horses, and left a note saying he was "tired of life."

The bodies were found by a neighbor, Frank Maki, about 7 a. m. when he was attracted by the blazing barn and went to the Oja home to help put out the fire.

Maki said Oja, about 50 years old, was found dead in the barn. Oja, about the same age, was dead in bed and the body of Lulu was on the floor in her bedroom, each killed by one bullet.

George's body lay in a driveway near the house, a pistol beside him and the pencil note in his pocket.

"My health is not good. I am tired of life. This is the best way out. The county can have the property for funeral expenses. My father's life insurance can be given to his aunt of Even, Mich."

Iron county authorities had not located the aunt, whose name was not given. Dr. Larson said the father, mother and their daughter probably were killed about 6 a. m.

Cobb Says: Farmers Promised Everything

By IRVIN S. COBB.

(Copyright, 1936, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Oct. 11.—All the candidates having promised the farmers everything that either they or the farmers could think of, and the "little fellow" having, as usual, been fed on beautiful pre-election hopes (after the election he and his beautiful hopes can go jump in the lake, also as usual), and various general problems having been dealt with in such a large, vague and general way that only Professor Einstein could explain what it's all about, and he couldn't if he had a headache, and in any event, would have made quite a tricky cross-word puzzle; therefore, he resolved that the campaign, on entering its final phases, is behaving exactly as a campaign should behave on entering its final phases.

And he further resolved that the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November shall be the day of rest and thanksgiving for such private citizens of the republic as have lasted until then. Being as we're a hardy race, it is hoped quite a sizable delegation will survive.

Herty Paves Way To Make Finest Papers From Pines

Pioneer Who Perfected Manufacture of Lower Grade Product Discovers Fat in Trees; Its Extraction Opens Way to Still Another Industry.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE, Associated Press Science Editor. SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Discovery of fat in pine trees, fat containing the same stuff as human and animal flesh, was announced today by Dr. Charles H. Herty, director of the Pulp and Paper Laboratory of Savannah.

With the fats he found a cheap, easy way of extraction which he said promises two new industries. Ridding the trees of fat, he said, makes it possible for the first time to manufacture the finest grades of bond and book paper from the southern forests.

The fats themselves offer a new by-product industry to the present newsprint makers, for Dr. Herty found the same fats in the spruce trees from which the world supply of newsprint is made.

The tree fat is useful for making soap and for mining flotation processes. With it is a mixture of fatty acids and waxes. One tree acid is oleic, a potent ingredient in the human body sought by physicians for medical experiment. Another is linoleic, used for paints. In the waxes is cholesterol, which can be converted into vitamin D.

Dr. Herty discovered the fats while trying to make book and bond paper out of southern pines. This he undertook two years ago after he had developed methods of making newsprint out of all grades of southern pines. His pioneering work is sponsored by the industrial committee of Savannah and financed by the Chemical Foundation, Inc., of New York city.

The handicap to making book paper was what the paper industry calls "pitch." It is the stuff which shows as an occasional slightly discolored spot in paper. It is not pitch, but Dr. Herty said no one knew exactly of what it was made.

To find out, he sliced sections of tree wood thin as tissue. He colored the slices with biological stains like a physician looking for the cause of disease. The result was discovery that the "pitch" was made of what botanists call "ray" or pycnogenous cells. These are the "living" parts of the wood, which a few years ago would have been identified simply as "protoplasm."

Chemical analysis showed they were filled with fats, fatty acids and waxes. These cells are visible only under a microscope. They are many times

LONDON TO SPEAK ON RELIEF TODAY

Candidate Spends Sunday at Columbus; Goes to Cleveland for Address

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Relief and its relation to the jobless was chosen by Governor Alf M. Landon today for discussion at Cleveland tomorrow night as he interrupted his Lake States campaign for a Sunday rest.

The relief address was originally scheduled by advisers for delivery at Detroit Tuesday.

While the presidential nominee repeatedly has demanded the elimination of what he terms "waste and extravagance" and political spending in the administration of relief, he has not yet outlined in detail his own views.

The Republican platform called for a "return" of relief administration to nonpolitical local agencies; advocated federal grants-in-aid to states when local revenues bore part of the burden; urged that state and local funds be used for relief and unemployment.

To an Italian celebration of Columbus Day in Chicago, the Governor today addressed this message to Judge John A. Scharbauer.

"Please present my greetings to our fellow citizens of Italian descent in Chicago who are gathered together to honor the name and memory of Christopher Columbus. Our citizens of Italian extraction have rendered great and valuable service through the years in the development of America."

"Here they have discovered the opportunity for free enterprise and unshackled initiative through which they have found the finer things of life under the American system. While they have been helping to build America, they have been free to achieve those rewards that come to individual enterprise under the opportunities of the American way of living."

He evoked a cheer when he observed "in this hemisphere from the North Pole to the South Pole, no war is going on anywhere, and I'm very proud of that."

From Denver, tomorrow the President's campaign route will take him southward for platform appearances at Colorado Springs, Pueblo and La Junta in Colorado, and at Dodge City, Kan., in mid-evening.

TOWNS INUNDATED, HOMES DESTROYED BY FLOOD WATERS

Livestock Are Drowned and Crops Ruined; Many Villages Reported Under Six Feet of Water; Five Cities Are Isolated.

JAPAN IS IN PATH OF NEW ONSLAUGHT

Province of Pampanga, North of Manila, Hit With Heavy Loss of Life Feared; Rivers Flooded.

MANILA, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Fifty persons were known to be dead to-night and 400 were missing—probably washed away by flood waters—as the result of a typhoon which swept across Luzon island Friday and Saturday. Reports indicated the storm was one of the worst in the history of the Philippines from the standpoint of human toll.

Forty-seven bodies were recovered from several villages in Nueva Ecija province, north of Manila, and three persons were known to have drowned in Camarines Norte province, east and slightly south of here.

The 400 missing were believed to have been swept away by the flood waters of the Pampanga river, which rises in Nueva Ecija province and flows southward into Manila bay.

Loss of life was heavy in Cabanatuan, provincial capital, and at nearby Santa Rosa.

Course of Storm Watched. The China Clipper, at Wake Island, 2,800 miles away, watched the course of the storm to determine whether to delay her flight on to Guam and Manila with the first airplane tour of the Pacific preparatory to inauguration of regular passenger service.

The terrific storm missed the Manila area by only a few miles. Pampanga province, north of the metropolis, was reported hard hit and many were said to be missing there.

Five Pampanga towns were flooded and isolated. The storm raged for 40 hours in that area. Farmers expressed that heavy casualties would be found at Arayat, San Simon, Candaba, San Luis and Apak.

Rivers Flooded. All rivers were flooded. Hundreds of houses were destroyed. Livestock was drowned and crops ruined.

Twenty houses were swept away at Cabanatuan and about 60 townspeople were missing. Several villages were flooded to a depth of six feet.

Three of the known dead were in Tarlac province, to the west of Nueva Ecija. A storm also hit the provincial capital far south of here. No casualties were reported but there was heavy damage.

A new typhoon, 450 miles east of northern Luzon was moving northwest. Observers said it probably would miss the Philippines but might strike southern Japan.

Weather forecasters here said the new storm might delay clipper flights both in and out of Manila.

40 Soldiers Are Killed As Train Breaks Up

BOGOTA, Colombia, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Forty soldiers were killed and 42 seriously injured when two cars cut loose from a military train plunged over a precipice and were dashed to pieces on the rocks.

The accident occurred 40 miles outside Bogota.

Police were investigating to determine whether deliberate sabotage was responsible.

Jimmy was too happy to utter a word. He sank back on his pillow—cheered and happy. Mrs. Moore, watching the scene from a corner of the room, was beaming with gratitude for the big fellow who had brought cheer to her little man.

Konemann promised Jimmy he would score one touchdown against Duke just for Jimmy Moore. And Jimmy, who can hardly open his mouth, managed one more smile of appreciation and joy.

EBMALMER TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER TODAY

OREGON, Oct. 11.—(AP)—A bald undertaker's assistant who hoped to marry a red-haired widow and set tle down on a chicken farm, must defend himself at his trial opening tomorrow against a nine-count indictment charging he murdered his wife.

With state's attorney planning to demand the death penalty, Guy M. Tallmadge, 38, Rockford, Ill., embalmers will go on trial in circuit court on the charge he shot and killed his wife, Hattie, 34, on a lonely country road last May 19.

Tallmadge, married 18 years, told motorists whom he stopped at the scene of the shooting near Chana, Ill., a "ragged holdup man" had shot his wife.

smaller than the tree fibers which make paper. They are extracted by diluting the pulp and letting it run by gravity over a porous screen. The small cells fall through with the water. There is no machinery. At the end of the downspout, Dr. Herty has a new type of pulp, more free from the fat than even the spruce pulps now used for the best grades of paper.

Another new process separates the water from the fat.

Spruce trees, Dr. Herty stated, contain only about 1.2 per cent of the fats. The southern pines all contain much more of the living stuff, which probably accounts for them growing nearly five times as fast as spruce.

One of the southern pines, loblolly, has eight per cent of fat.

"It," said Dr. Herty, "all the sulphite pulp (the newspaper pulp) sold in this country annually were made from southern pines it would mean a daily production of fats and waxes of about 420,000 pounds. None of these fats are now being extracted here or elsewhere."

Getting rid of the fat in trees has been also a big stride ahead for another of Dr. Herty's scientific "dreams," the making of clothing from southern pines. The fat in these trees has been a barrier to making rayon.

Preliminary tests of the "fatless" pine wood indicates that it will make standard rayon.

WORKER DISAPPEARS FOR 'DATE WITH DEATH'

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Volunteer seedling parties combed outlying woods today without success for Arthur Hood, 40-year-old WPA worker, who walked away from a highway project shortly before noon Friday, reportedly telling a fellow worker, "I've got to die at 12 o'clock."

A. L. Austin, WPA superintendent in charge of the project on which Hood was employed, said parties searched woods in Shannon and Wrenn mine sections, but all that had been found were Hood's gloves and his hat. He estimated 150 men took part in the search.

to act" if alleged violations were not stopped immediately.

Pravda said "the Soviet government's statement handed to the London committee not only nailed the interventionists to the cross of shame but smashed the plot of silence which the other powers attempted to maintain regarding violation of the non-intervention agreement."

"Backed to the wall by undeniable facts and arguments, the representatives of these countries appeared at the London meeting like criminals caught red-handed. The Fascist Portugal delegate appeared in a pitiable and unenviable role without arguments, so he contented himself with a slanderous attack on the Soviet Union, after which he dramatically left the committee."

"The Italian Grandi, caught in a similar plight, resorted to a flood of pure inventions and preposterous charges in order to rebut evidence against his government and the effect was the same."

"The German Bismarck, profiting by Grandi's experience, was less fluent but equally unconvincing."

"Realizing neither general denials nor counter-charges against the Soviet Union would convince anybody, they fell back upon tricks of procedure, thus blocking concrete discussion of the problems which the Soviet government raised."

Simultaneously, it was announced popular subscriptions in Russia buy food for Spanish Loyalists had reached approximately $5,200,000 and a fourth ship had sailed from Odessa toward Spain with supplies.

REBELS RAIN BOMBS ON SPANISH CAPITAL

that he was remaining in the Central telephone exchange because "it was too dangerous to leave."

The unseasonable weather helped to reduce the bitterness of the fighting over the week-end. Rebel and government armies on both fronts spent the time consolidating their positions.

The Toledo-Aranjuez-Olitas-Santa Cruz section remained unchanged. The Guadarrama front directly north of the capital has been unchanged for a month, with the exception of battles in and around Navalperal.

The Rebel still hold mountain crests at Somosierra and Alto de Leon, but find such tactically advantageous positions have the disadvantage of intense cold and are difficult to reach with supplies. Loyal forces still hold the important points of Lozoya and Santillana, whence most of Madrid's water supply comes.

An Important Victory.

The only important change during the whole week was the capture of San Martin de Valdeglesias by the Rebels, but tacticians point out that by taking that village the Rebels "put their head in the noose" since they are surrounded on three sides. The importance of San Martin is that it commands the way to El Tiemblo, location of the Rebel headquarters.

Rebels claimed to have captured El Tiemblo, but there has been no change in the quantity or quality of Madrid's electric power.

The outstanding exception to the week-end lull was at Oviedo, where the remnants of a besieged Rebel garrison, harried and bombarded for 12 weeks by force Asturian miners, seemed of the verge of extermination. The miners possessed more than half the city. Hurling sticks of dynamite, they were closing in on General Miguel Aranda's 800 surviving fighting men—all that was left of a garrison of 2,500 regular soldiers. Civilian deaths in Oviedo, where there were 40,000 men, women and children a few weeks ago, also were reported to be heavy. No quarter was asked or given.

Loyalist troops were reported to have opened a counter-offensive from Navas del Rey in an effort to recapture the important key town of San Martin de Valdeglesias, 37 miles west of Madrid.

Bitter fighting occurred for more than two hours until night fell. The Rebels fortified themselves in an ancient castle within the town and showered the advancing Loyalists with machine gun bullets.

Madrid Seeks Recruits.

The Madrid government put into force stern measures to obtain discipline and at the same time gain recruits. Decrees were signed calling for the establishment of concentration camps and a system of enforced labor for civilian foes of the government.

General Queipo de Llano, southern Rebel commander at Seville, radioed that Russia airplanes, money and munitions were furnished the Madrid government.

First radio contact was established between Madrid and Moscow Sunday. Foreign Minister Julio Alvarez Del Vayo thanked the Soviet Union for food and other supplies received from Russia by the Madrid Loyalists.

His wife's body, the head nearly severed, was found in the cellar of the Crosby home. Beside it, according to investigators, was a blood-stained ax.

$24,000,000 APPROVED FOR WATERWAY WORK

Roosevelt Announces Allocation in Letter to Atlantic Group.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Allocation of $24,000,000 for the development of Atlantic coast waterways in 1937 was announced today by President Roosevelt in a letter to J. Hampton Moore, president of the Atlantic Deepwater Waterways' Association.

The letter, which will be read at the opening session of the association's twenty-ninth annual convention in Trenton Thursday, follows:

"In my letter to your association last year it was my pleasure to point out to the members of the Atlantic Deepwater Waterways' Association the progress which had been made in harbor and waterway improvements along the Atlantic coast with funds of the emergency relief appropriation act. These meritorious public works have been continued and during the past fiscal year funds totaling more than $24,000,000 have been expended in the improvement of rivers and harbors on the eastern seaboard. This year has been noteworthy in witnessing the completion of the 1,435-mile inside route of the intracoastal waterway from Trenton, N. J., to Miami, Fla. Much credit for this accomplishment belongs to your association and it is to be congratulated therefore. Other waterway projects of permanent value to the nation sponsored by your organization have been completed or are progressing in a satisfactory manner."

"It is a pleasure for me again to extend my greetings to the members of your association on the occasion of its twenty-ninth annual convention. Your organization, since its inception at Trenton in 1907, has been most active in sponsoring waterway improvements along the Atlantic coast. I may say to you that these improvements are being prosecuted vigorously and that funds for the fiscal year 1937 amounting to $24,000,000 have been allotted to this purpose. Permit me to congratulate you on the success which has attended your efforts and express my appreciation of your continued interest in national waterway improvements which serve to increase business and industry, improve employment, and provide lasting benefits to the nation's welfare."

CHURCH IN KINGSTREE MARKS BICENTENNIAL

KINGSTREE, S. C., Oct. 11.—(AP)—The Williamsburg Presbyterian church observed its bicentennial today with a historical service which recounted its past. Approximately 800 persons representing several states attended. A tablet was unveiled to John Witherspoon, born in Glasgow, Scotland, in 1734, who came to Williamsburg in 1734 and was a moving spirit in the organization of the church. Witherspoon's descendants include the Rev. James McDowell Richards, D. D., president of Columbia Seminary, Decatur, Ga.; William Stuart Fleming, chancellor of Tennessee; Tim Ervin Cooper, chief justice of Mississippi; Chief Justice Eugene B. Gary, of South Carolina, and Dr. John Witherspoon, president of Princeton University, and signer of the Declaration of Independence.

DIVER SEEKS TORSO OF MUTILATION VICTIM

WEYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 11.—(AP)—A diver searched the bottom of Whitman pond today for the head and torso of Grace Asquith, 40-year-old widow slain in her lonely cottage home near by. While the diver worked in the deep pond water, state detectives hunted a "heavy-set man about 40," a visitor, police were told, to the Asquith home on September 21. Police say she was slain two days earlier. Other investigators continued an examination of the cottage plumbing, in which bits of flesh were found last Friday. Still others sought some trace of John A. Lyons, missing friend of the blond photographer's model. A crowd which police said numbered thousands swarmed through the Whitman pond woods and around the Asquith home today.

but two exit—both of which were solidly blocked by the troops. The Rightists, their route cut off, were dispersed quickly by the gendarmes on bicycles who pedaled into the crowd and forced them back. Authorities hurried along to the Communist meeting and succeeded in evacuating thousands from the hall and grounds. The famous red stone cathedral of Strasbourg was crowded throughout the morning by Catholics praying for peace.

A special guard was maintained on both the German and French sides of the Khel bridge over the Rhine a mile outside the city. The Communists, under surveillance of the mobile guards, had marched to their meeting hall at the fair ground behind red banners. They were estimated to number 20,000. Speeches were made in German and red banners were emblazoned in German. Cartoons of Nazi Dictator Adolf Hitler also were displayed in an appeal to the German-speaking population.

POPE PIUS HAS COLD.

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Vatican sources said tonight Pope Pius XI, who is nearly 80 years old, was suffering from a cold. They asserted, however, no great concern was felt for his condition. He was in robust spirits, they said, when he received the Cuban minister to the Vatican on Saturday, although the situation in Spain continues to trouble him.

Justice Stone Has 64th Birthday, Setting High Court Average at 71

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The average age of the nine supreme court justices advanced to 71 today when Justice Stone celebrated his 64th birthday.

The ages of Justice Stone's colleagues are Brandeis, 79; Vandenberg, 77; Hughes, McReynolds and Sutherland, 74; Butler, 70; Cardozo, 66; and Roberts, 61. Justices are eligible to retire at full pay when they reach 70 and serve 10 years on the bench. While six of the nine are eligible to retire none has indicated any intention to do so. Aside from a birthday cake at the family dinner, the occasion of Justice Stone's birthday passed unobserved. He recently returned from a summer on his island off the coast of Maine.

SUSPECT IN BOMBING TAKES OWN LIFE IN JAIL

EASTVILLE, Va., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Dr. H. R. Hege, 47-year-old North Carolina dentist charged with the bomb-killing of Curry Thomas, eastern shore farmer, took his own life early today in his cell at the Northampton county jail.

Dr. Holland Trower, jail physician, said the prisoner cut the jugular vein in his throat and the radial artery in his left wrist with a broken piece of his eyeglasses. Lying on his cell cot, he died to death. The pajama-clad body of the dentist, one of two Mount Airy, N. C., men charged with sending to Thomas the mail bomb which blew the farmer to bits at his Cape Charles, Va., home last July, was found at 6 a. m. by Robert Truitt, another prisoner. He had been dead. Dr. Trower estimated, three to four hours.

REGISTRATION SETS RECORD IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—A record-setting total of 2,890,123 residents of New York city will be eligible to vote in the November election.

The increase, distributed over all five boroughs, was hailed by both major parties as favorable to their candidates. The comparative figures by boroughs follow:

"MOTHER" MARY JONES IS HONORED BY MINERS

MT. OLIVE, Ill., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Thousands of coal miners bared their heads today before a new monument erected to the memory of "Mother" Mary Jones, their beloved leader for 60 years, and pledged themselves to heed her famous labor war cry of "Get Out and Fight!"

The crowd—estimated by the program chairman at more than 50,000 persons—was one of the largest miners' groups ever assembled, union officials said as they unveiled the memorial to this little old woman who was heroine of scores of mine union battles before her death in 1930.

She is buried in Union Miners' cemetery here. With all national leaders of the Progressive miners and political parties of three parties present, religious music and oratory heralded the tribute—a marble shaft which had on its face a plaque of labor's "Joan of Arc."

ACCIDENTAL DEATHS GROW

It is estimated by the National Safety Council that accidental deaths in the United States will reach a total this year 10,000 higher than that of last year, and that 9,500,000 citizens of the country will suffer injuries in non-fatal accidents.

It is a discouraging commentary on American life that approximately one out of every 13 people in the country should annually incur injuries in accidents, and that the estimated 10,000 deaths this year will mean that one out of every 1,400 or 1,500 inhabitants will have lost their lives in accidents of some nature.

No such tragic toll is taken in other countries, which enjoy less of the blessings of modern civilization, but the people of which are not gripped by the impulse to drive ahead, whether at work or play, that is so marked a characteristic of the average American.

The truth of the old adage that "haste makes waste" is emphatically borne out in the loss of life and time resulting from our craze for speed on the public thoroughfares, in transportation and industry, and in our lack of deliberate performance of the everyday duties and pleasures of life.

A hopeful feature of the safety council report is the estimate that fatalities in automobile crashes this year will be in the neighborhood of 36,000, a decrease of approximately 2 per cent from last year's total. The educational work of the council during this year is unquestionably responsible for the fact that an end is in prospect to the annual increases in deaths from this source.

The safety council was organized 25 years ago for the purpose of "educating" mill workers to be careful, and has since spread to all industries and received the cooperation of public officials interested in highway safety. Its president, Dr. C. H. Watson, cites that "we can point to 200,000 lives that would have been lost in industry and on our transportation systems had the death rate of 1913 continued."

What has been accomplished in industry and transportation can also be done in the everyday pursuits of the average American. Only by a universal realization of the need for constant care can the present distressing death rate from accidents be reduced.

TURKEYS

H. P. Griffin, field manager of the Northwestern Turkey Growers' Association, estimates America's turkeys will bring producers around $50,000,000 when the birds are purchased, mainly for Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners.

Mr. Griffin operates from Salt Lake City, Utah, and that is a long way to the principal turkey markets in the large cities of the east; likewise Texas, another large producer, is distant, even as the crow flies.

There are several good-sized turkey farms in Georgia, but notwithstanding that fact, and the fact that Georgia-produced turkeys are just as good, and sometimes far better than those raised a thousand or more miles away, most of the turkeys Georgians eat on Thanksgiving and Christmas are imported.

Georgians like their fried chicken on Sundays, but on the two big feast days of the year they do honor to the "national bird" in a big way, and it is unfortunate that more of them are not produced within the state. They are a real "money crop," a trifle more difficult to raise than chickens, but when they finally go on the market they recompense the producer handsomely for his work and care.

A few turkeys on every farm, carefully handled, will help to make the state self-supporting in that respect, and those who take a liking to the industry may gradually expand as they gain experience.

Practically every goose and duck on the markets in Georgia is also imported. They are a tasty basis for a big dinner, and plump, tender specimens, fresh from the farm, would quickly build up a ready demand.

AMERICA'S FIGHT ON CRIME

Six million, three hundred thousand fingerprint cards, contributed by 10,000 agencies in America and 76 agencies from the rest of the world, are on file in the identification division of the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington. J. Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau, informed members of the International Association for Identification at their annual convention in Dallas, Texas.

Originating in Scotland Yard 35 years ago, and introduced into America two years later, this system of identification, first used as a means of tracing criminals, but of more recent years adopted as a positive means of identifying good citizens as well as bad, is making encouraging progress.

A few years ago there were few fingerprint experts in this country, other than those in the identification bureau of the Washington department and connected with police departments of the larger cities. Today their number has increased to thousands, with additional clerical personnel and the other thousands employed as a result of the enlarged business of industrial concerns manufacturing fingerprint equipment. Thus, aside from the actual good accomplished by the fingerprint bureau in tracing criminals and identification of other individuals, the growth of the industry takes up a great slack in the unemployment situation confronting the white-collar worker.

Mr. Hoover stresses the infallibility of the fingerprint method of establishing identity, and cites a recent case in Texas where a determined effort was made to prove that fingerprints could be duplicated and that they could be changed. This was exposed and made useless, as was a western case in which an effort was made to prove that identical prints could exist. He stated that in all the history of the fingerprinting science there has never been a duplication of prints, and that in instances where criminals had mutilated their finger tips to avoid detection, the mere fact that this had been done leads to thorough investigation.

Touching upon the fingerprinting of reputable citizens for purposes of identification, Mr. Hoover said:

The time will come when the identification activities of the International Association for Identification will be looked upon not only as the foe of the criminal, but the friend of the good citizen, the protector, the assistant, the character reference and the repository of information which will give the honest man greater freedom and greater peace of mind. I refer, of course, to the growth of civil fingerprinting which now has reached a point where 200,000 fingerprint cards of reputable citizens are on file. In the bureau's identification division a total of 600 such cards are being received each day. This means that the slow work of education is proceeding against what was a solid wall of ignorance, and that the inhibitions of the average citizen against having his fingerprints on file gradually are being broken down. May I say that had a certain child's fingerprints been on record at the Federal Bureau of Identification, there would have been no opportunity for the friends of a dastardly kidnaper to have cast doubt upon the identification of this baby's body. It costs nothing to file a civil fingerprint card in the Federal Bureau of Identification, and members of the association can perform no better service than to spread this information in their respective communities.

Especially as a means of protecting the public from criminals and to aid in running down aliens who are in the country illegally, reputable citizens of the nation should file their fingerprints with the government.

Anti-Semitic Outburst.

One is shocked to learn of the violent outburst of the crudest anti-Semitism at some ministerial conference in Asheville. In that pleasant city one revered gentleman made the terrible allegation that "the Jews foster Communism in the United States" and when he was admonished that certainly not all Jews could be held responsible for the spread of Communist ideas, he retorted that the Jews, who did not not have nevertheless not protested against those of their brethren who adhere to the Marxist philosophy.

We have often said here, and we repeat today, that the same lines cross Jewish life in the United States as general Gentile life. There are in general Communist Jews and the phenomenon is easily explained. There are also violently anti-Communist Jews. There are Jewish criminals and there are Gentile criminals, the argument is old and wearisome. It is not becoming in a Christian minister to seek a scapegoat in the members of the Jewish race for the ills that beset our economic and social life.

If all the Jews were banished from America we would be faced with exactly the same problems. It is easy, of course: "The Jews are responsible" and one is bound to get a large hearing and a huge following, for men like to unload their own guilt on the backs of others. It is always the other fellow who is to be crucified. Always some fellow human is bound to be the sins of others. Not we, he is guilty, not we, but he, the Jew, he is conspiring against us.

There is no argument against blindness and hatred. There are still wild beasts lurking in the recesses of the human mind. They can be chased back into their lair only by living in accordance with the precepts of the Jew of Nazareth, upon whose teachings our American civilization was to be built: tolerance, friendliness, brotherly love.

General Goering's Uniforms.

Coming into France the other day on the Pergamon Express, I sat with a German gentleman, with whom I fell to talk of the idiosyncrasies of leading personalities in the Reich. Naturally, we drifted to Herman Goering and his inordinant pompadour circumstance and his fondness for original uniforms.

"Not so long ago," said my fellow traveler, "it is told the water pipe burst in Goering's new palatial home. The general was in bed at the time. He was awakened by his valet: 'Excellency, excellency, the bathroom is flooded, the water is seeping through the floor of the first floor. What am I to do?' 'Water?' said Goering. 'It is rising you say? Quick, my admiral's uniform!'"

Back Home.

Mail has accumulated to mountainous proportions during a long absence—first in Palestine and then in Spain—and I am at a loss as to where to start in replying. One of these days I will make a brave start beginning with my old friend and tormentor, the Hon. Hugh H. Trotter, who simply challenges the veracity of a change of address notification which was sent him in my absence.

The truth is, that when I left, my place was Switzerland, not my new address in France, there is a house and a garden. Any Atlantans straying in the neighborhood of old Paris will receive a cordial welcome there. Lodge me, is getting to be an age to do the "honorees" even if I should be absent.

The distant machine-gun firing we hear all day, but not at night, should not make anyone nervous. It is the gentle machine practicing in the forest of St. Germaine-en-Laye. The weather is splendid at present. The late autumn leaves are splendid with red, orange and yellow. The forest paths are powdered with patches of gold.

Not so marvelous is the first burning question put up to me upon my return: Why did you leave? Well, $24 a ton in this burg and all the other burbs of France. A ray of hope in this dark situation is the announcement that the French government will not devalue the franc. If they put it 50 to the dollar I would be more than content. But will they? Evidently, the Hebrew poet, Ben-Zeeb, had had some contact with misers, judging from the following little poem entitled:

The Miser and the Fisherman.

"A miser once on a river fell.
Hark! by a fisherman heard his friend yell;
He swiftly ran and cried, 'Give me your hand.
And I shall bring you safely back to land.'
'Give,' moaned the miser, 'when I've ne'er before.
Given, no—never! He was seen no more.'"

"A miser once dreamed he had given

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
FAIR ENOUGH
BY PAUL MALLON.
BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

STRAW WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The Literary Digest has become as secretive about its final poll figures as the supreme court is about its decisions, and rightly so. It does not want anyone publishing its conclusions in advance.

At the same time, the mechanics of magazine publication are such that the figures must be collected considerably in advance of publication. The upper strata of political leaders must know about such things and there is practically nothing that a political leader cannot find out if he sets his mind to it.

Consequently, the word is out in thoroughly reliable form in the political stratosphere, that Governor Landon's present published Digest poll strength of 56.9 per cent will work down to a tentative final figure of 54.6. Allowing 10 per cent for error (the general working percentage of Digest error), this would still leave Mr. Landon with more than 49 per cent of the Digest straws and seem to forecast a close Landon victory, as Lemke will draw from Mr. Roosevelt's total.

Needless to say, the Democrats do not share this conclusion. Their latest inside figure on the popular vote (not for publicity purposes, but for their own private headquarters information) shows an expected majority of 3,500,000 for Mr. Roosevelt. Their expectations on the electoral vote run up over 400 for Roosevelt (266 is the majority needed to win). They discount the Digest vote on the ground that it did not reach lower strata of voters.

A confidential poll of Washington political writers during the past few days showed somewhat similar expectations, but was not conclusive. Most of those polled were Roosevelt supporters. Some of the Republican supporters failed to join in. Consequently, the poll averaged out to the astounding consensus favoring more than 400 electoral votes for Roosevelt. Apparently everyone knows what the outcome will be, but few agree.

JOCKEYING Top trade unionists are generally characterizing the current talk about a Lewis-Green peace as nonsense. Their inside line on the situation is that the party of the first post does not want peace. Mister John L. Lewis, they say, is desirous of having a Dubinsky and believes he can win eventually.

What started the peace rumors was some pacifying talk from David Dubinsky, the garment king of New York. He was talking about getting a certain union with which he had been dickering, into the Lewis C. I. O. He wanted to show that C. I. O. is not a wrecking crew.

As soon as Mr. Lewis heard about it, he called a press conference and passed around word there would be no peace except on his terms, which simply means there will probably be no peace.

PROPHECIES The business of prophecy has been almost as dangerous during the last four years as in the Hoover era. Books have been written about the bad guesses of industrial giants of the booster decade, 1920-30, but no one has mentioned the sour predictions of some of the congressional political giants in recent years and months.

Noteworthy was the one that the scrapping of the NRA would cause industrial chaos, whereas employment has risen. Equally spoiled is the one that voiding of the Guffey coal bill would ruin the coal industry. Coal production is now at peak, warnings of price increases have been made and a shortage of cars is predicted by some of the new predictors.

FEUD Chairman Nye, of the munitions committee, who gave out the Elliott Roosevelt-Fokker data, still is neutral in the presidential election fight. This apparently leaves only two out of the 125,000,000 persons in this country as neutrals.

Incidentally, Nye did not give out all the data he had. He is sitting on several exhibits. These are comparatively unimportant. What he leveled against him by Senator Clark, of Missouri, for giving out anything is a continuation of the old scrap Nye had with the Democrats. You may recall that he questioned the acts of Woodrow Wilson, and thereby caused the senate to shut off his funds and conclude his investigation.

Waiting.

Any Georgian who owns, or who can borrow for a day or two, an automobile, has no excuse for failure to see the glory of the mountains in their October dress of scarlet and yellow.

All the colors of the fall, the tints of Indian summer, are just now at their finest, to continue, barring frosts, to November. There is no more glorious sight in the world than the rolling heights of the tree-covered mountains in the northern part of our state, with their constant play of changing sunshine and shadow, their mist-enshrouded tops and their gay softness of maple and poplar and sumac.

Then there are the innumerable waterfalls, in their gemlike wonder, tossing tiny drops of sparkling beauty through the sunshine like scintillating pearls. One can drive far through the hills without finding waterfalls.

Today there are safe, all-weather roads, built by the National Forest Service, that lead to the most beautiful spots in the remote mountain areas. Until these roads were built, these spots of scenic charm were impossible of access for the average traveler. But now, the motorist has opportunity for all to see and enjoy and revel in this beauty.

Primarily built as means of access in case of fire, these roads are ideal for the motorist. They lead to the most beautiful spots in the state, and they are winding up and higher and ever higher toward the peaks. They are perfectly safe for the average driver and no one need hesitate to use them.

Virgin Timber.

From Blairsville, for instance, you can take the Wolf Pen Gap road to Cooper's creek, which goes through virgin timber, chiefly giant yellow pines, with here and there a cypress in the Chattahoochee National Forest, just a few miles from Clayton. And the Scaly-Pine mountain road from Clayton to Pine Mountain and Babine, which leads through virgin forest, is perhaps the most beautiful scenery in Georgia.

And at various points along these roads, visitors will find welcome evidence of the National Forest Service in the form of pure drinking water, benches, tables, chairs and incinerators, and if you want to make the most perfect case in the places waiting where steak may be grilled or wieners or frankfurters broiled.

I learn all about the opportunities in the mountains in Georgia for the enjoyment of fall beauty at its best, send to the United States Forest Service, Glenn Building, Atlanta, and ask for their treated booklet suggesting automobile trips through the national forests of north Georgia and north Carolina. They'll be glad to send it to you.

The Breaks Of Fortune.

All of us are subject to good and bad breaks of fortune. I was thinking yesterday, however, as I drove along the road between Decatur and Lawrenceville, about the people who have invested their all in the stock market. I know many of them, and service stations, roadside eating houses, tourist camps and other attractions for the transient tourist, along that highway.

I wonder how much they are going to suffer, in a business way, by the opening of the new Buford highway to the north, when that highway is completed. Will it mean complete ruin for many of them? Or will the traffic for Lawrenceville, Winster and Athens, which will continue to use the old road, provide sufficient trade to maintain them all?

EYEWITNESSES TELL OF TROLLEY SLAYING

Fellow Operator Also Reports Seeing Loitering Negro at End of Line.

Two eyewitnesses to the slaying of Berry C. Dodson, street car operator, Saturday night at the end of the Magnolia car line were reported to have been located yesterday by police. The Constitution learned last night.

Other late developments disclosed a negro man had been loitering around the Magnolia and Griffin streets car stop when the street car immediately preceding Dodson's arrived on its regular run. W. E. Tarvin, operator of that car, reported that when he passed Dodson's car, four blocks from the end of the line, 15 passengers were aboard the outbound car. Of this number detectives reasoned half rode to the line's end.

Witnesses' Story. From the eyewitnesses it was learned a negro man approached the car, knocked on the closed door and asked to be let inside, but the door was stuck and the operator told him he could not board yet. They said Dodson continued working on the door and the negro knocked impatiently again, only to receive the same answer.

Finally, the negro went to the opposite side of the car, knocked the third time and again was told the door was stuck, it was reported. Then, apparently incensed, the negro fired through the window at the motorman and fled, the witnesses declared.

Loiterer Seen. Tarvin said when he got off his car at Griffin street to change the trolley he noticed a negro man eyeing him sharply from across the street.

"I put my hand in my pocket," he said, "and the negro, after one long stare, walked away."

This report indicates a man might have been waiting for Dodson, detectives said.

Two Georgia Power Company detectives, W. L. Rolander and V. H. Elsberry, are working with City Detective Leo Nahlke and M. M. Coppenher on the case.

Last year Dodson was held up, robbed, and his throat cut by Walter Wright and Walter Hill at the end of the Inman Park car line. They are now serving sentences for this crime on the DeKalb county chain gang.

Dodson is survived by his wife, a daughter, Miss Sarah Dodson; a son, J. B. Dodson; two sisters, Mrs. Albert Welch, Dodson, Tenn., and Mrs. John Coots, Longbranch, Va.; five brothers, Dennis, Dodson, Doyle, Tenn.; W. I. Dodson, DeRosette, Tenn.; Joe Dodson, Davidson, Tenn.; Munford Dodson, Doyle, Tenn., and Fletcher Dodson, Atlanta, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Dodson, Doyle, Tenn.

A Bath Essence That Is Rare
in Fragrance—Use as Skin Perfume

By MIGNON.
(The Mignon who writes this column does not sell, endorse or recommend any cosmetics.)

An exquisite bath essence has, thank heaven, been put on the market in a size that almost anybody can afford. The bottles are irregular, the essence is a little heavier in texture than perfume and strong enough so that a few drops of it perfume the bathtub full of water.

Personally, I like this essence better as a perfume than I do as a bath-essence. I tip the bottle on the end of my finger and then rub it on the upper part of the arms. With the heat of the body to bring out the fragrance there just isn't anything nicer.

I always have thought that women used bath essence for the psychological effect it has upon them. No matter how hard a day you have had at the office or in society (which is even harder), a fragrant bath gets you ready for anything that is ahead of you in the evening. Of course the trick is to lie in the bath for about 10 minutes at a temperature of 100 degrees, lukewarm, not hot. Hot water is enervating.

I can't describe the fragrance to you, but this bath essence has everything. It is downright enchanting and if the cook left today or the dress you ordered did not come home, or your new hat didn't fit, don't get angry, just use a little bottle of this essence and your troubles will quickly fade. This is the real truth. The essence is a find.

ATLANTA'S WHO'S WHO IN THE ZODIAC.
MISS MABEL ROBSON.

April 19th marks the natal day of Miss Mabel Robson, one of Atlanta's and the south's best-known women.

Her achievements in banking circles have made banking history for women. This brings her birth date under the influence of the Zodiacal sign of Taurus, with Mars and Venus as ruling planets. Aries is the Zodiacal sign of forethought, originality, ambition, vigor. Taurus is the Zodiacal sign of practical-mindedness, strength, retentive powers, loyalty.

Miss Robson exemplifies all of these qualities in her daily contacts.

The Mars-Venus position in this chart creates a love of harmony in all things, environment as well as tastes. This position tends toward steady growth and development.

The Moon-Venus aspect bespeaks a warmly human personality.

The Mars-Mercury position tends to sharpen the intellect, increasing the impulses and adding fire and dash to the mind. It also gives great adaptability, quick comprehension, the power to respond to the mental requirements of the situation.

Miss Robson's chart shows that she has great natural ability, but her life accomplishments show that she has risen to her present eminence only through hard work and application.

You can get your complete astrological forecast through The Constitution, compiled by Bernice Denton Pierson, one of America's best-known astrologers. ## YOUR FIGURE, SIR

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

LESS WEIGHT—LONGER LIFE.
"Well, at my age, I'm supposed to weigh as much as—?" Is that your stock alibi for overweight?

Age has nothing to do with it! It is just a comfortable old custom to take on weight as one grows older instead of cutting down on the load.

Although the weight charts reflect the average tendency to gain, after 35 you are likely to live longer and be healthier with less weight. Fat is a load for you to carry, and 50 pounds of excess puts just as much strain on your system as would lugging around a 50-pound suitcase.

As you grow older, such an excess becomes increasingly burdensome. You tire more easily and are likely to wear out faster with overweight. There is no guarantee that a heart which takes care of 160 pounds can just as efficiently take care of 210 pounds.

In general, overweights have a mortality more than twice the normal, and extreme overweights have a mortality about 13 times the rate for underweights. As you grow older, it is better to err on the side of too little rather than too much weight.

Since the weight of the muscles, organs and bones does not increase with age, we should expect to find the standard of ideal weights decreasing with advancing years. Statistics show that a higher level of health goes with less weight, and it has been proved that fat does not keep company with old age.

No weight chart can predict to the pound how much you should weigh. You do not need to consult a chart to discover that your waistline is over-eating too much or getting too little physical activity—probably both. Unfortunately, the more weight you accumulate, the less enthusiasm you have for exercise. . . . and the more you weigh. A cumbersome body is difficult to move. You hate to make any effort, and like to sit around in big easy chairs, preferably with a foot rest—and that's no way to keep fit!

You need a moderate amount of exercise, for a healthy physical fatigue is essential to your well-being. Reverse what might be your natural inclination, eat less and take more exercise. Go into your figure and health program slowly. If you are headed toward fair, fat and forty, perhaps you need your doctor's advice as to how far you can go with exercise. You cannot jump from a sedentary existence in which high calorie foods have been your chief interest to strenuous activity on low calorie foods. Take it easy, and make the change gradually.

The "Man-Size Reducing Menu" conform as nearly as is possible to the healthy, basic diet of the normal individual. Look to them to list the foods you need for normal weight and health—rather than just a means to reducing—and use the "Calorie Chart" rather than the weight charts as your guide. ## Friendly Counsel

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondence invited. Your name held in confidence. Write Miss Chatfield, care The Atlanta Constitution.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:
What am I to do about the old, old problem? A grass widow (I say darn most of them) who has broken up her own home, husband and children scattered, one here, one there, is doing all she can to break up my home.

How can a man let a woman like this worry his wife to death when she has worked hard, kept his children together and been good to him? Haven't a man any sense of honor? Of course there is nothing to it and expects me to believe him. In spite of heartache and loneliness, I can't help loving him. And what do you think of her?

ANSWER:
In your present frame of mind everything you do and say is a tactical blunder, yet nobody can blame you for feeling as you do, or expressing yourself as being bitter and disillusioned. But there is a wiser and a wiser way to deal with your problem. Give your husband the benefit of the doubt, go on as though you believed his protestations of innocence; quit cursing the grass widow, lay off of the accusations and woo the weak one as gently and tenderly as you can. He will come home in time.

A lonely divorcee with her home smashed, her children scattered, her life broken to bits is likely to be a menace to the community unless she has a good character and a conscience. She is a drowning woman catching at a straw and she doesn't bother about whose straw it is. She has the aura of tragedy about her—always attractive in the distance. She makes a big appeal to the protective instinct of the man in her neighborhood and to his pity and finally to his poligamous nature, or maybe it is the other way around. But anyhow if she gets hold of a weak man brother there is trouble for his wife.

He doesn't stop to think of what he owes his mate or, if he thinks about it he imagines he can lead a double life, keep her in ignorance of his dealings; say peace when there is no peace, have his fling and still hold on to his family life. Surely it is crucifixion for the wife yet with tact and patience and superhuman self-control she can, nine times out of ten, live to see the day when he comes home disgusted with his sordid affairs and eager for the clean and comfortable companionship with his wife and children.

April 19th marks the natal day of Miss Mabel Robson, one of Atlanta's and the south's best-known women.

Her achievements in banking circles have made banking history for women. This brings her birth date under the influence of the Zodiacal sign of Taurus, with Mars and Venus as ruling planets. Aries is the Zodiacal sign of forethought, originality, ambition, vigor. Taurus is the Zodiacal sign of practical-mindedness, strength, retentive powers, loyalty.

Miss Robson exemplifies all of these qualities in her daily contacts.

The Mars-Venus position in this chart creates a love of harmony in all things, environment as well as tastes. This position tends toward steady growth and development.

The Moon-Venus aspect bespeaks a warmly human personality.

The Mars-Mercury position tends to sharpen the intellect, increasing the impulses and adding fire and dash to the mind. It also gives great adaptability, quick comprehension, the power to respond to the mental requirements of the situation.

Miss Robson's chart shows that she has great natural ability, but her life accomplishments show that she has risen to her present eminence only through hard work and application.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

Please step down to the phone very quietly, his father ordered. "And call the Casino... it's three-three. Say speak to Mr. Larrimore who is waiting there. Tell Mr. Larry I'm ready for him. All clear?"

"Yes, sir!"

"Oh, yes... Middleton. Wait for the car at the road. Tell Mr. Larry that we had a sad accident here this morning... if he hasn't heard. Mr. Gaston, of course. If the boys could get up here to this room without making any noise, I think it would be very nice. You can fix that?"

"Sure, Dad!"

The boy closed the door and sped softly on his errand.

"I think we won't go into any details here," Beckham said shortly. "These two fellows know what it's all about, and I'll wise you a little after they're gone, McCune." Larrimore's little minister smiled wryly. Gosh, but it's going to seem good to be myself again.

"I want to thank you," Beckham said solemnly. "That man Ploehne certainly has a nasty pair of hands."

For some reason, he did not want to meet Sloan's eyes... even though he knew he was safe now. Funny, but it was hard not to feel a little sorry for the fat one. He looked so surprised and reproachful. And the minister was a government man! From the Narcotics Bureau. He could guess some of the answers now about the Ellidges... or whoever they were.

"I say, McCune," the federal man suggested suddenly, "why don't you go over to your place and stretch out a while? You look seedy. I'll entertain these fellows until my friends come. Want to hang around here and do a little more checking up... now that I don't have to use my own means of entrance?" He smiled. "I'll drop in and talk to you later."

"Maybe I will," Deeds decided gratefully. "If you're sure you won't need me." He was walking a tightrope as he left the room, without so much as a glance at the two men on the bed.

He was glad to close his own door and lie down on his bed. The next morning, he was making his first trip. His throat ached abominably. What a grip that guy had! Lucky that Beckham showed up when he did... must have been listening on the other side of the door.

A little later, there was the sound of steps in the hall. Quiet, but suggesting several persons. No sound of voices, but the same footfalls again... the officers leaving with their prisoners. Deeds hoped that preacher wouldn't keep him waiting long... funny, but he couldn't think of Beckham in any other role, even now. Plenty smart, that chap.

Plenty smart. What would Joan think of this turn in affairs? He must see her, as soon as he found what it was all about.

When Beckham finally entered the room, he had an amiable grin on his face and a saucer of cracked ice in one hand.

"Got this from the darker," he explained, presenting his offering. "It'll ease your pipes if you'll let it melt in your mouth. I'll talk... if you like."

"Oh, thanks! That's good..." Deeds settled back with a smile. "Please tell me what it's all about."

"Okay. I'll sketch in the highlights for you... but don't do any broadcasting, please. I'm going to give you a little more of the inside than the public will have handed to it, for the present."

"You've probably guessed that we have been trying to smash a dope ring. A very clever one. The fellow you've known as Sloan Ellidge was, what the story writers call, the master mind. His name is August Ploehne, at least he started his career that way. He was a doctor once, discredited. The fat chap is no relation. His name is Charles Paxton and he's brighter than he looks."

Deeds stirred uncomfortably. "This isn't easy to say, Mr. Beckham... but you seem to know everything. Gaston mentions Miss Kendall... you know why?" His face flushed, as he asked the question.

"Your regard for the young lady has been rather... apparent," Beckham answered with a slight smile. "No one is going to blame you. I'll be perfectly frank, McCune. I knew there was some relationship there. I... or had been. I wasn't able to verify it yet. Sloan did it for me this past hour. I heard what he told John."

"Oh, then you understand. I... I wish you would tell me more about..."

Maybe you guessed that."

Deeds nodded.

"These two chaps operated through agents... dangerously clever. It's been a slow process, but we've been drawing a loop around them for some time. My job was to keep a check on their wind-up. We had good reason to think that they were closing out and making ready for a final getaway. They wouldn't have gotten far, but the big trap was set to clean up a few clues here on the ground. You forced their hand today... incidentally, you've been holding up the game for me."

"Me? How?" Deeds' eyes grew round with surprise.

"I had to take a little time out to check on you and see if you fitted into the picture. I had concluded that you were what you seemed... but we can't overlook details." Beckham chuckled. "I'll have to admit that I've frisked your belongings pretty thoroughly, even to the extent of burglarizing a locked bag. That letter from your New York friend had me guessing. Do you know why?"

"Not exactly." Deeds' eyes grew round with surprise.

"There's a print on it. The fat man's."

"Oh! Why. I can tell you about that..."

"Um—m. I believe we'd better say it's Beckham. There's no camouflage about the wife and boy. I brought them along for a little vacation and to build up the picture. Middleton is kid enough to get a thrill out of his old man's job and I can use him to advantage now and then. For his sake, I should explain that I sent him to your room the other day. He exercised his own ingenuity in bringing Miss Kendall into the episode. It wasn't very creditable, but I wanted your reaction at the time."

Deeds shook his head doubtfully. "I still think you're a preacher... or have been."

"Only second-hand. My dad was... maybe I've inherited some of the earmarks. And that's about the picture for the present."

"No, it isn't, Mr. Beckham. You're leaving out the important part. It's... Gaston."

"I know," Beckham stared thoughtfully into space. "There are reasons why I wish we didn't have to go into that, out..."

"He was hooked up with those two guys," Deeds said steadily. "I know that. You'll find a note under the lamp there... he wrote it this morning. To me. I want you to read it."

Beckham found the envelope and read its contents unhurriedly. He resumed his chair.

"Poor chap," he mused. "That isn't news altogether."

"He was planning to get away for good last night," Deeds explained. "Or early this morning, rather. His car wouldn't work and he asked me to look at it. He thought it had been tampered with. You know anything about that?"

"Oh, yes," Beckham admitted cheerfully. "I was planning to let in garage with my car to the wall. I was going to stop the lad... only the Ellidge boys saved me the trouble. Some more of the fat boy's work. He didn't have any trouble starting the car for you this morning, did he?"

"I'll say he didn't! You're some wiz, Mr. Beckham!"

"Just a part of the job, Sloan... we'll stick to the old names for convenience... had a conference with young Gaston last night. I think the old man was growing nervous. He must have put the boy on a spot and decided on a run-out powder. We'll never know exactly. Rather a gallant gesture... at the last."

Deeds stirred uncomfortably. "This isn't easy to say, Mr. Beckham... but you seem to know everything. Gaston mentions Miss Kendall... you know why?" His face flushed, as he asked the question.

"Your regard for the young lady has been rather... apparent," Beckham answered with a slight smile. "No one is going to blame you. I'll be perfectly frank, McCune. I knew there was some relationship there. I... or had been. I wasn't able to verify it yet. Sloan did it for me this past hour. I heard what he told John."

"Oh, then you understand. I... I wish you would tell me more about..."

Maybe you guessed that."

Deeds nodded.

"These two chaps operated through agents... dangerously clever. It's been a slow process, but we've been drawing a loop around them for some time. My job was to keep a check on their wind-up. We had good reason to think that they were closing out and making ready for a final getaway. They wouldn't have gotten far, but the big trap was set to clean up a few clues here on the ground. You forced their hand today... incidentally, you've been holding up the game for me."

Gaston, if you don't mind. Just what do you think happened to him?"

"Well... to go back a little. Gaston was one of Sloan's agents. We can't mind matters there. We had enough on him to put him away for a long time. You're wondering if he was a dope addict. I think not. Just how he fell into Sloan's clutches, we'll never know. But I suspect it was brought about through financial difficulties. Gaston was a heavy spender and always hard up. I figure Sloan pulled him into the net gradually... and that was the end of it. That doctor was no common criminal... you'll find that out some day."

"I know that," Deeds raised himself on one elbow. He lowered his voice. "I want you to tell me something... that matters a lot to me."

"Go on. I won't promise an answer."

"Did Gene Gaston... take his own life?"

There was a deep silence in the room after Deeds' question. Beckham whether Gene Gaston took his own life.

"There are several things to take into consideration," was the Narcotics Bureau agent's studied reply. "You're thinking it may not have been a suicide. It's easy enough to figure out a motive for Sloan's putting the poor chap where he couldn't talk. You've had a chance to find out what that man can do with his hands. It would be fairly easy in the water. And now, we know for sure from Gaston's letter to you that he wouldn't have made much resistance unless he changed his mind at the last."

"He was murdered!" Deeds exclaimed in a low voice. "I tell you he was murdered. Beckham. That devil did it!"

"Easy! We don't know that. Where are your witnesses? I should have been one, I suppose... but I wasn't. Only those two doctors. They'd laugh at the charge. More than that, we have written proof now. That Gaston intended to kill himself. What would he more likely than he would drown himself? Plenty of motive. He was on a spot, as his letter to you says."

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

He never can remember how to say good-bye.

Some men seem constitutionally unable to say good-bye. They stand at the door, fondling their hats, while you twist your handkerchief to a string. "Well, I'd better be going," they'll say. And then they suddenly decide to describe yesterday's big league game to you in detail. Then they twist the old hat again, and say, "Well, I'd better be running along, whereupon they launch forth into an outline of the last book they've read. "Well, I really must go now," they say, and get outside the door, where they start asking you how your mother is, and if she has tried being inoculated for colds yet.

It wears a girl down. Sometimes she can hurry the process along a little by urging the departing guest to sit down again. That will remind him that he's on his way out.

But actually the only remedy lies in the guest himself. If he really can't learn to say a swift good-bye, with a hand shake, and then to go, he should at least practice the going part. He can start good-bye from the hall after the door is closed. That shouldn't be so hard.

JEAN.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

THE SHIPS OF COLUMBUS.

Four hundred and forty-four years ago, Christopher Columbus and his sailors reached an island in the New World. This fact leads me to speak today about the three famous little ships which carried the Spaniards across the Atlantic.

The first known picture of Columbus reaching an island in the New World.

Those ships are famous, but we do not know so much about them as we should like to know. For example, we do not know just how much they cost to build, or just how large they were.

A curious picture made by an Italian artist in the year 1493, is meant to show the scene when Columbus reached the island he called San Salvador. The art work is not good; the Indians on the island are made to look far larger than they really were. This picture is very old, but we cannot trust it to show the true shape or size of the vessels which were used to cross the Atlantic.

A great deal of study has been given to old records, however, and some things about the ships seem fairly clear. We know they were not very large, and that there were between 100 and 120 sailors and officers aboard the three of them.

The largest vessel was the Santa Maria, meaning "St. Mary." It was a "full-rigged ship" after the manner of a galloon with a complete deck, and may have been as much as 100 feet long. The owner was Juan de la Cosa, who took part in the voyage and in the discovery of the New World.

The vessel was "chartered," or we might say "rented for the trip."

We are told the other two ships were small sailing vessels which the town of Palos were forced to supply by royal command. One of these was known as the Nina, meaning the "Baby." The other was the Pinta, which has been translated to mean the "Painted Lady."

It seems certain that none of the vessels were bought for Columbus—he was only allowed to use them. A good deal of money was needed to pay the sailors "four months' salary in advance," to store the little fleet with food, and for other purposes. More than half the expense money came from the royal treasury. A Jew named Santangel probable gave or lent some of the funds. He had turned Christian, and held high office under Ferdinand and Isabella.

The Pinzo, brothers—Martin and Vicente—are believed to have supplied the rest of the expense money. The old tale about Queen Isabella "selling her jewels" to raise money for Columbus is seldom told nowadays, though it once was a popular story. It is believed the queen did say she was "willing" to sell her jewels if it had to be done, but there is no proof she really sold them. She deserves credit, however, for standing by the plan.

Her husband, King Ferdinand, did not believe Columbus would succeed.

FORGET-ME-NOT DAY ARMY IN READINESS

Junior Chamber Resolutions
Urge Atlantans To Buy
Flowers for Vets.

Arrangements for the annual sale of forget-me-nots in Atlanta next Friday have been completed, and an army of between 1,000 and 1,500 prominent women is prepared to take to the field. The Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce has gone on record as urging Atlantans to "buy generously as a patriotic duty."

Mayor James L. Key has signed a formal proclamation calling attention to the campaign to raise funds for needy disabled American Veterans of the World War.

Frank Flinn, commander of the Betty Harrison Jones chapter, D. A. V., sponsors of the sale here, has pointed out that funds from the sale will be used both for direct relief of needy veterans and in providing employment training in addition to the rehabilitation work. He said many of the veterans are in dire need because meager pensions do not cover the cost of caring for families, purchases of medicines, etc. The fund is administered by bonded officers.

The resolution adopted by the Junior Chamber of Commerce follows: "Whereas, Atlanta will be called upon next Friday to remember the needy disabled American veterans of the World War by purchasing forget-me-nots; and

"Whereas, hundreds of Atlanta's leading women citizens are donating their time and services to this cause; and

"Whereas, the President of the United States has seen fit to endorse and support this annual sale of forget-me-nots; and

"Whereas, all funds raised by this sale are used for worthy purposes for which no other funds are available;

"Therefore, be it resolved: that the Atlanta Junior Chamber of Commerce go on record as urging all Atlantans to co-operate by purchasing generously the blue forget-me-nots to be offered them next Friday, thus performing a patriotic service for those soldiers who were incapacitated for supporting themselves while acting in defense of their country."

'Half-Angel' Launches

Weeks Run at Capitol

Picturing the hurry of the city room, "Half-Angel," new Twentieth Century cinema, opened a week's run at the Capitol theater yesterday. "Half-Angel" is the correct title for this masterpiece of farce, for the irrepressible reporter, played by Brian Donlevy, is neither all a devil nor all an angel when he gets together with his comical stoge and a beautiful girl, Frances Dee.

The story centers around the reporter's attempts to aid the girl. Immediately attracted to her, he believes her story and takes desperate chances to prove her innocence to a doubtful public. He develops a clever ruse to trap the real criminal and bides his time to spring it.

A good cast, well chosen, adds much to the picture. Among the supporting players are Charles Butterworth, as funny as usual; and Helen Westley, who also takes a likable turn as Miss Dee. For those who enjoy thrills, laughs and romance, this is a picture well worth seeing.

On the stage, the management is offering "Rhapsody in Rhythm," which features the Great Togo in his wonder slide from the balcony to the theater stage. The Clair juggling act is above the ordinary and Fay Wallace, the songstress, thrills the audience with her voice.

Others on the vaudeville bill are Sam Rudick's 15-piece swing band, the Six Rhythmic dancing girls, and Cleo Coree, aro noleties. —E. L.

"VANITIES OF 1936" SET FOR TONIGHT

Knights of Columbus Council
Ready for Presentation of Smart Revue.

"Vanities of 1936," a musical variety show featuring local talent, will be presented at 8:30 o'clock tonight at the Erlanger theater. The show is sponsored by the Atlanta council, Knights of Columbus, as its Columbus Day celebration.

Approximately 250 local singers, dancers and others will appear in the revue, which has been in rehearsal for two weeks under the direction of Gene Arader.

The prologue will carry the audience back to 1492, when Columbus was endeavoring to persuade the Spanish rulers to outfit him for his westward voyage. Then there will be a short address by A. J. Croy before the revue actually gets under way.

The show is divided into two acts, with seven scenes each. The first act will feature a trip to fairyland; a specialty tap dance by Miss Kathryn Webb; "The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," a musical specialty; a Scotch Highland act; a ballet dance by Miss Mary Annie Linane; a Florida girl scene, and a skit called "Tea for Two."

In the second act, a melodrama, "How the Kentucky Derby Was Won," is featured. Other numbers include specialties by Misses Charlotte Fishman, Rosina Scottie and Norma Jeanne Haas; several skits and dances.

An interpretation of Carmen will be the concluding number of the program. Trader said the cast has shown remarkable development in mastering the steps of the difficult dances to be offered, and elaborate costumes and stage settings have been secured.

"Are you one of those who only cast shame upon the church and make it feeble?" the pastor asked in his sermon.

"Do you neglect the high privilege of prayer and worship God offers through His church? Then, under God and before high heaven, you are guilty of the world's most horrible sin," the abuse of high privilege. . . .

"Men have been false to the high privileges God has given our nation," he asserted.

"If one-tenth of the scandals unearthed by senate investigation committees during the last three years are true, then why should any American trust men of wealth and power? Have not the high privileges that have been theirs been betrayed?"

The pastor, whose notices of the sermon stated that "to attend church is a vote for God; not to attend church is a vote for the devil," said he had received 300 "worst sin" answers from Litchfield residents and 500 more letters and telegrams from people in 32 states and Canada.

Ninety of them declared "sinning against the Holy Ghost" the worst evil.

Others named "ingratitude," regarded as the worst by 39 persons; slander; kidnapping; drunkenness; "starting a nudist colony;" communism;

hypocrisy, and lying.

16 Dead; Illinois Is

By The Associated Press.
At least 119 persons lost their lives in automobile accidents throughout the nation over the week-end.

A Nutley, N. J., woman saw her 7-year-old daughter killed by a novice driver whose car climbed a curb.

An 11-year-old boy died in a Buffalo, N. Y., hospital three hours after his face had been torn away when the car in which he was riding struck a truck, breaking the car in two and pitching the boy through the windshield.

Methodist Bishop Ernest Waldorf, of Chicago, told his congregation that "intemperance use of liquor is turning this nation into a slaughter-house."

The National Safety Council convention was told that the discovery by politicians that motorists are "easy picking" for taxes had led to thousands of automobile fatalities through tax evasion and consequent loss of revenue for building good roads.

Week-end auto deaths by states:

Alabama, 3; Arkansas, 2; Arizona, 1; California, 3; Colorado, 4; Connecticut, 1; Florida, 1; Illinois, 11; Indiana, 4; Kansas, 2; Kentucky, 1; Maine, 1; Massachusetts, 3; Michigan, 11; Minnesota, 1; Missouri, 3; New Hampshire, 2; New Jersey, 2; New Mexico, 2; New York, 5; North Carolina, 5; Oklahoma, 5; Oregon, 2;

PRIVATE DEBTS DROP 9 BILLION IN 4 YEARS

Board Denies Business Is Saddled With Too Heavy a Burden.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(P)—Private long-term debt in the United States was cut more than $9,000,000,000 in the depression years from 1929 through 1934, the National Industrial Conference Board reported today.

A reversal of debt liquidation was indicated in the preliminary estimate of a small increase in private debt last year.

The 1934 total was placed at $76,257,000,000 compared with $85,774,000,000 in 1929. In the decade prior to 1930, the rising debt trend had sent the total from $15,021,000,000 in 1920 to $46,237,000,000 in 1929.

The board said its study presented no evidence "to support the theory that business is saddled with too great a burden of private debt." Rates of growth of private long-term debt and interest charges, it noted, have been similar to those of national wealth and income.

It added there was no "factual basis" for statements the depression was precipitated by excessive private debt.

Non-farm mortgages dropped to $26,645,000,000 in 1934 from nearly $43,000,000,000 in 1929 and farm mortgages to $8,000,000,000 from $9,241,000,000. Industrial debt collected declined to $6,448,000,000 from $8,109,000,000.

The sessions will close next Sunday with a national radio broadcast of "a message to religious America."

The Chattanooga and Houston, Texas, capitalist said he changed his mind after hearing "Governor Landon's speeches."

Lengthening Shadow of a Man . . .

Behind the success of every great business lies the ambitions . . . the inspiration . . . and the ideals of a man.

Sixty-nine years ago there sprung from the ashes of a war stricken village a log store. Small in stature the building; but the determination and the ideals of service, of integrity, of courage, and of progress were the visions of a giant.

And so today, every day, we at Rich's see and feel the greatness of this man's inspiration in our daily efforts in serving Atlanta and Georgia and the South.

Initiation Pranks To Be Order Of Day Among Sorority Groups

By Sally Forth.

ROUGE, lipstick and other aids to beauty will be supplanted by crankcase oil, molasses mixed with corn flakes and feathers, today when the attractive group of pledges to four local sororities "go through the mill" for their initiation ceremonies. Such disturbing pranks as having fresh eggs broken over their heads, standing on fly paper gurgling an oyster saturated in castor oil will be employed, while the "best boy friends" will line Peachtree to watch the objects of their affections ride witch-fashion astride brooms up Peachtree and direct traffic at the intersection of Peachtree and Spring, a spot considered the favorite rendezvous for the younger set.

The P. I. Pi's will gather this afternoon at the vacant lot by the home of Kathleen Griffin, on Sixteenth street for the beginning of their program of initiation, which among other features will include shaking hands with a skeleton who will be the unofficial host for the occasion. The Sigma Deltas will use the "broomstick method" for much of their ceremony, which begins at the home of Mary Lewis on Palisades road. Their pledges will be forced to stride down Peachtree witch-fashion as aforementioned, to the final meeting spot late this afternoon at Peachtree and Spring.

Vacant lots are receiving their share of attention today, for the O. B. X.'s have selected the wide acres abounding the home of Cornelia Calloway on Peachtree Battle avenue for their program. Sally Forth has been told that among high spots on the program is the "fly stunt," when the pledges not only stand on fly paper, but become human flies and climb trees.

The Phi Pi's have been very secretive and very mysterious concerning the tactics they will use on their "rats," as the pledges are often called. They begin their ceremonies first at Bunkie Fuller's on Brighton road, and from the number of telephone calls, secret meetings and hurried visits to various homes, their initiation rites seem to be well organized.

The members are hoping that the day will be cold, and rainy with high winds and as dreary as possible in order that the program to be followed will be all the more weird and terrible. Elizabeth Colley is president of the Phi Pi's; Margaret L'Engle is head of the O. B. X.'s; Sue Clapp is president of the P. I. Pi's and Selma Wright heads the Sigma Deltas.

WHEN little Marion Hamilton Martin, the daughter of Harold and Boyce Lokey Martin, was christened at St. Luke's church yesterday, she wore an exquisite batiste dress trimmed in lace and embroidery which has sentimental interest in that it was first used many years ago in Denver, Col. An old-fashioned model and very long, the dress featured the dainty shoulder effect and a wide panel down the front, which added to the very youthful baby loveliness of little Marion for the auspicious occasion.

The dress was loaned the baby by her maternal aunt, Mrs. Hugh Lokey Jr., of Greenville, S. C., whose small daughter, Kathleen Dillingham Lokey, wore at her christening two years ago at the Pro Cathedral. The baby's mother, the former Kathleen Shaw, of Denver, wore it when she was
